"Y" DIRECTORS HOLD ELECTION, DISCUSS PLANS

Present Officers, Headed by E. J. Schoenlaub, President, Are Retained

WORK OUTLINED

Club-Rooms, Baseball Ticker, Redecorating, Included in Program

Reorganization of the Marion Y. M. C. A. board of directors was completed last night at the regular monthly meeting when old officers were reelected and two new members placed on the board.

No action was taken on securing a new boys' work secretary, although several applications for the post have been received. It is likely that the matter will be dropped until next September.

In order to cut down the amount of supervision needed in the various departments, the boys' work division will be transferred to the lower floor as soon as the bowling season draws to a close.

The lobby will be redecorated within the near future and a baseball ticker installed. This ticker is being furnished through the courtesy of Charles H. Isaly. Rooms on the second floor, now being used for boys' work, will be converted into club rooms.

RAILROADER LOSES LEG IN ACCIDENT

Amputation Necessary After Willis Bilger Is Hit by Car in Erie Yards

Willis Bilger, 68, of 278 Fies av, sustained injuries which made necessary amputation of his left leg just above the knee, about 6:30 o'clock last night when he was struck by an Erie car switching in the Erie yards.

Mr. Bilger, who is a car inspector for the Erie, was doing repair work about the lower portion of the car when the accident occurred. Engineers, failing to see him, switched cars, striking Bilger and severing his leg below the knee. Amputation took place several hours later at City Hospital, where he was taken in the M. H. Gunder ambulance.

According to hospital attendants, Mr. Bilger is suffering from no injuries other than his leg and is resting easier today. He has been employed with the Erie for about 25 years.

Shortly before the accident occurred Mr. Bilger's daughter, Mrs. E. E. Smith, E. Center-st, who is suffering a relapse after an attack of influenza, was removed from her home to that of her sister, Mrs. A. D. Sheneman, 854 Davids-st, in the Gunder ambulance.

SHAME, PRINCETON!

Lindbergh Walks About Campus Unheralded and Unrecognized

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16—Students at Princeton University were mulling over a new phenomenon today when it became known that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh walked about the campus yesterday, unheralded and unrecognized.

The students are crestfallen. Colonel Lindbergh arrived in an automobile and went to the farm of Gerard B. Lambert, a brother of Albert S. Lambert, one of Lindbergh's original backers.

Returning to the campus the famous colonel spent some time with President John Grier Hibben and walked about the university unrecognized. At last, President Hibben introduced the colonel to several students. The news spread about quickly but Lindbergh, by that time, was on his way back to New York.

HOOVER, SMITH ROLL UP LEADS IN PRIMARIES

Republican Candidate Now Has More Than 500 Delegates, Table Shows

SMITH'S TOTAL IS 578

New York Governor Has Notable Reserve Strength Not Yet Figured

Washington, May 16 — The overwhelming leads being rolled up by Herbert Hoover and Gov. Al Smith for their respective presidential nominations was further emphasized today by the results of primaries and conventions held in a number of states yesterday.

Hoover added delegates from three states, New Jersey, Alabama and Montana, to his already imposing total. In New Jersey he is accorded the entire delegation of 31, in Alabama he is figured to have obtained 14 out of 15, and in Montana at least 4 out of 11.

Putting Pennsylvania's 79 votes in the Hoover column—as virtually all the politicians have done since the Mellon indorsement—it brings the Hoover total to above the 500-mark. The most reliable tables in Washington give his total as of today as approximately 508 pledged, instructed or committed delegates. Only 545 are required to nominate. And in that total of 508 none have been figured from New York, where the Hoover managers claim at least 47.

Holding Them Problem

From this compilation, it is apparent that if the secretary of commerce can hold his indicated strength during the next four weeks he will come very close to being nominated on the first or second ballots. Whether this strength can be held is, of course, conjectural. The Hoover opposition contends that in this imposing total there are perhaps 100 that cannot be considered bound irrevocably to the cabinet candidate. These 100 are described as "fluid," that is, favorable to Hoover but liable to bolt if another bandwagon hoves into view.

On the Democratic side, Smith picked up delegates in New Jersey, Montana and Vermont yesterday. State conventions in Montana and Vermont instructed 16 delegates to vote for the New York governor at Houston, and there was no opposition to his getting the 28 from New Jersey.

This brings the Smith total to date to pledged, instructed or committed delegates to approximately 578 in the capital's most reliable tables, and he has notable reserve strength that is not figured in that total, such as in Maryland and Ohio and Kansas. To nominate at Houston requires 734 votes.

Harding, the Man, Praised By Secretary James E. Davis in Breakfast Club Address

Great Share of Present Prosperity of Nation Accredited to Late President Because of Immigration and Tariff Measures; Declares Executive Was Martyr to His Office

Columbus May 16—The late Ohio president, Warren G. Harding of Marion, received the largest majority vote ever cast for a president of this great nation, Secretary of Labor James E. Davis, said here this morning in addressing a meeting of the Columbus Breakfast Club.

Approximately 150 persons, all prominent men, crowded the hall where the secretary of labor who has served terms in the cabinets of United States presidents extolled the accomplishments of "Ohio's greatest statesman." A menu of ham and eggs was served to the persons attending.

John J. Lentz, self-appointed president of the Breakfast Club, and president of the American Insurance Union, introduced the distinguished speaker.

Praises Legislation

"America's greatest fraternalist" as the secretary was called when presented by Lentz, began his talk with a toast to the city of Columbus. President Harding, the speaker continued, is responsible for the prosperity of this nation with his two admirable legislative gestures in restricting immigration and providing for a protective tariff.

"If it were not for the immigration restriction this country would be engulfed in the millstream of communism. Unrestricted immigration would be the downfall of this country," Davis declared.

"The protective or revised tariff gave to the United States its present prosperity," Davis continued. "Harding, who died a martyr to his office, is responsible for this. He signed the immigration bill when the two of his predecessors vetoed it. He disregarded opposition in fighting for his tariff legislation."

RAILWAY EMPLOYE VICTIM OF ASSAULT

Found Wounded Along Tracks Near Prospect; Robbery Probable Motive

Monte Gray, a laborer, was found lying along the Hocking Valley tracks near Prospect about 11 o'clock last night with severe knife wounds on his face and head.

When Sheriff James A. Deal and Deputy Vane Ireland were called at 5 o'clock this morning to make an investigation Gray was unable to give any description of his assailant. The victim, who is employed by the Hocking Valley on an extra gang, said that he was unable to sleep in the bunk-house last night and had gone outside and laid down along the tracks. Shortly afterwards, he said, he fell asleep.

Marshal Joe Carpenter of Prospect was unable to unearth any clues and called the sheriff's office early this morning.

Gray said that he had $20 in his pocket when he left the bunk-house last night. The money was missing when he was found along the tracks.

Medical attention was given the injured man at the office of a Prospect physician. He will be sent to his home in Logan.

BEAUTY IN OUR CITIES URGED BY COOLIDGE

Declares Clean Surroundings Lend Moral Tone to Every Community

ZONING SYSTEM LAUDED

Greater Application of Arts to Expansion and Growth Suggested

Washington, May 16—President Coolidge, addressing a joint meeting of the American Federation of Arts and the American Association of Museums here today, drew an analogy from the homily about clothes making the man and urged a greater application of the arts to the expansion and growth of American cities.

"If clothes make the man—and certainly good dress gives one a sense of self-respect and poise—how much more is it true that clean, beautiful surroundings lend a moral tone to a community," he declared. "Gradually we are getting rid of the squalor of the slums of our big cities and of the oppressive ugliness of the small towns."

Mr. Coolidge gave much credit to the Washington Plan Commission, created in 1901 under the guidance of the late Senator James McMillan of Michigan for having started a national movement for more orderly and artistic civic development and he noted that that impetus had carried a long way, according, however:

"It is especially the practical side

SAFER IN JAIL

Attempts Made To Assassinate Former Hungarian Dictator

VIENNA, May 16—That attempts were made to assassinate Bela Kun, former Bolshevik dictator of Hungary, after his arrest in this city charged with plotting a Communist uprising in Hungary and elsewhere throughout Central Europe, was learned today.

Kun is one of the most hated men in Europe, especially among the Hungarian aristocracy. Scores of his enemies were searching for him in Vienna. An attempt was made to kidnap him. After he was locked up another enemy sent him a box of poisoned chocolates. In fact, the former red dictator is believed to be safer in his cell than he would be at large.

U. S. SHELVES CHINA PROTEST AGAINST JAPAN

Will Continue "Hands Off" Policy in War Crisis of Orient

JAPS DEFEND POSITION

Southern Chinese Government Continues Victorious; Nearer to Peking

Washington, May 16—The Chinese protest against the Japanese occupation of Shantung has not altered the United States policy of "hands off" in the war crisis of the Orient.

The note from Nanking has passed from the White House—having been sent directly to President Coolidge—through the hands of Secretary of State Kellogg to the musty archives of the far eastern division.

Since the Nationalist regime at Nanking never has been recognized by the United States, this government has no obligation under diplomatic usage to acknowledge or reply to the document.

Japan Sends Defense

The Southern Nationalist government vehemently protests the vigor of the Japanese action in Shantung, describing the occupation as a flagrant encroachment upon Chinese sovereignty. The extreme vigor of the Japanese military action, the text suggests, indicates a political purpose beyond the mere protection of Japanese life and property in the war-torn Tsinanfu area. Nanking calls upon the United States, as a party to the Washington treaty of 1922 guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China, to curb the Japanese.

Simultaneously with the Nanking communique, the State Department received the text of the Japanese defense of its action filed yesterday with the League of Nations secretariat at Geneva.

Although diplomatically important—for she has no friends save Russia—the Southern Chinese government continues victorious in the field. With her advance troops now within 50 miles of Tientsin, the vital port of Peking, her armies have an open road to the forbidden city.

American forces at Tientsin and Peking are regarded as sufficient to protect American nationals during the unrested invasion. No new troop or fleet movements from Shanghai are contemplated.

New Traffic Light System Nearing Completion Here; Cable Now Being Placed

Sidearm Signals Expected To Be in Operation Soon at Six Main Street Intersections; Master Control at Police Station Included in Plan

Cable for Marion's new sidearm traffic lights, which will guide traffic at the six main street intersections, is now being threaded through the conduit placed in the street several years ago and it is expected the new system will be in operation within a comparatively short time. A cable has also been carried to the city hall where a master control will be installed at police headquarters.

The iron poles to be used at intersections where there are no trolley poles have arrived and are expected to be erected within the next few days. At intersections where street cars pass the trolley poles will be used as support for the lights.

Delay in installing the lights was due to the inability to get cable. With the cable now on hand it is expected the work of installing the lights will go forward rapidly. The lights, it was stated by those in charge of the installation, can be secured within 30 days when they are wanted.

The decision to use the sidearm type of light was reached by Safety Director William B. Strayer and a committee appointed by Emery Murphy, president of council, after a survey had been made of a number of other cities of the state where that type of light is in use. In one or two of the cities, the center light was being replaced by the sidearm type.

Points of Advantage

An outstanding feature in favor of the sidearm type of light, it was held by the committee, is that it would be visible to an approaching motorist from any position, whereas the center light is difficult to see by the motorist who is at the intersection or who is wanting to make a turn.

The signals will be equipped with the green, yellow and red lights and can be operated either from a unit control at police headquarters or from control boxes. The control at police headquarters will permit the desk sergeant to turn on or off any two lights or will enable him to flash the yellow light in case of an emergency, such as a run being made by the fire department.

What disposition will be made of the present lights now in use, has not been determined. It is probable, however, that they will be placed in storage, although the feasibility of placing them at other lower intersections on the city, has been discussed. Wherever the lights are used, however, the city would be faced with some problem of securing repair, the company manufacturing the lights having discontinued business.

Corruptness In Politics One of O. S. U.'s Problems

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, May 16—Here's a proposition which may need a Mussolini or Julius Caesar for solution.

It is: How to rid Ohio State University of the corruptness in politics that has become one of the evident features of student elections in the past few years?

Student body leaders in cooperation with university officials in recent student elections have tried many available means to conduct a campaign using booth which have not been marked by irregularities and fraud on the part of supporters of candidates to fit the various others to be filled.

Disgust of the autocratic system on the part of the student body as a whole has led to the non-appearance of the more ethical electors at the polls in recent elections until only a small per cent. of the voters now keep the student officials.

An unmeasurable height in corruptness was reached in the election of the annual homecoming queen in the fall of 1926. Becoming disgusted at the attempts of supporters of several candidates to throw the election by illegitimate balloting, correct attendance of the student body joined together and tarried the collegiate would-be winning a corsage queen.

Last week, pending student election, the race for representative of the Ohio Union Board of Governors, was thrown out when it was declared and proven to have been colored by fraud and illegitimate methods. More than 100 postcards which are necessary for voting, shown to have been used in an illegal way, were collected at the poll.

The Student Senate governing body has finally come to the rescue and on the suggestion of a faculty adviser has worked out a plan which they believe will eliminate corruptness. A successful working of the plan of having all election booths supervised by college secretaries, was found in the selection of new Student Senate members, recently.

TWO BARNS ARE DESTROYED AND WOMAN INJURED

Third Fire Occurs in Vicinity of Mt. Victory Within Week

BLAZE ON YEARSLEY FARM

Livestock, Grain, Hay and Harness Also Lost in Conflagration

Special to The Star:

Mt. Victory, May 16—The third fire less than a week in the Mt. Victory district destroyed two barns, two calves, two sheep, two tons of hay, a large quantity of many pieces of work harness on the Joseph Yearsley farm, two and one-half miles east of here last night. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Yearsley and son are tenants on the farm. The loss is estimated at between $3,000 and $5,000 and is partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Yearsley sustained severe injuries in attempting to drive from one of the barns a horse which became frightened when it broke away from its stall and ran back into the burning barn. Four horses and practically all the farm machinery was saved.

Members of the LaRue Fire Department responded to the call and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze on the roof of the house which spread from the barns, and prevented the fire from spreading. A change in the direction of the wind, which otherwise would have carried the fire was at its height, helped the firemen and neighbors in preventing the flames from reaching the house and other outbuildings.

Near Center of Road

The fire was discovered shortly after 9 o'clock by Dr. H. A. Hoopes, veterinary surgeon, of LaRue, who was driving by on business call in the vicinity of the fire. The flames, Dr. Hoopes said, were coming out near the center of the larger barn, as near as he could discern. Members of the Yearsley family were asleep at the time the fire was discovered. No definite cause has been found as to the origin. The fire was one of the most spectacular ones in this vicinity. The entire sky was lighted with the reflection of the flames and could be plainly seen for a short distance west of Marion.

Marion Men, Dubious About Weather, Pay Little Attention to "Straw Hat Day"

THE well-dressed Marion man formally introduced the straw hat season yesterday, May 15, by wearing his last winter's felt.

While a few straws made their appearance on the streets yesterday, the majority of men are waiting for definite promise from the weatherman that the old felt hat won't be needed any more this season before using it to stop up the flu for the sitting room stove.

Marion hat shops are displaying a wide variety in men's summer headgear. The sailor, panama, leghorn, Milan braids, and Swiss straws are still the popular numbers, although the style makers have devised a few new shapes that make last year's hat passe.

More Colorful

Men this season are going in for more color in their hats if models on display here can be taken as an indication. Shades range from the white panamas to tans, grays and greens. An extra dash of color, unlimited as to loudness so long as it blends with the hat, is added by the bands.

Little change, except the variations in bands, is seen in the sailors, and Swiss straws. Leghorns, panamas, and Milan braids, however, have taken on some new shapes.

The Alpine crush of the last two seasons isn't so good this year, one is told as he makes his selection at his favorite battery. It's a circular crush or no crush at all that puts "IT" in this year's summer head dress for men.

Men's furnishing stores report hat sales good, considering the lack of straw hat weather so far this season. The tan leghorns and the Milan braids in gray and green shades are said to be most popular.

Cubs Tie Cincy For First Place

CARDINALS CAN KNOT NATIONAL SCRAMBLE BY BEATING BRAVES

Reds Lose to Phillies as Chicago Sweeps New York Series

New York, May 10—While the New York Yankees are making a farce of the American League race, the National scramble is the closest to a free-for-all seen in that organization in years.

St. Louis can go into a triple tie with Cincinnati and Chicago by beating Boston again today while the Reds and Cubs are idle. And the Giants are only two games behind the Cardinals.

The Reds dropped into a tie with the Cubs for the lead by losing to the Phillies yesterday, 5 to 3, when Donald Hurst, rookie first baseman obtained by the Phils from the International League last week, clouted a homer with two on. It was the Quakers' first victory in the west.

Giants Lose Series

The Cubs outslugged the Giants, 10 to 7, sweeping the series and stretching their winning streak to 10 straight. The Bruins walloped 16 hits and scored seven runs in their last two times at bat.

George Harper, obtained by the Cardinals from the Giants because of his penchant for hitting home runs, performed his specialty with one man on. This blow, coupled with Hafey's homer, gave the Cards a 3 to 1 verdict over Boston.

Brooklyn lambasted Pittsburgh for the third time in a row, sending the champions into sixth place. The weak-hitting Robins collected 16 hits and won in a romp, 10 to 3.

In the American League the Yankees have copped 12 of their last 13 starts, have won six straight and have taken 10 out of 11 from the western clubs, making a clean sweep against Chicago and Detroit. Two homers and a triple by Babe Ruth featured their 12 to 8 win over the Tigers yesterday.

A's Down Cleveland

The Athletics refuse to give up the ghost, however. They beat Cleveland again, 5 to 0, and squared the series. Daddy Tris Speaker smacked three doubles and the venerable John Picus Quinn allowed only six hits in registering his fourth straight victory.

The rejuvenated Red Sox, now composed mainly of veterans, have created a furore up in Boston by winning four straight. Running won a 3 to 1 pitching duel over Ogden of the St. Louis Browns in the final game. The Sox have risen to the dizzy heights of a tie with the Senators for fifth place.

Washington couldn't hit Ted Lyons in the pinches and lost a 3 to 2 verdict to the White Sox, who got an even break in the series.

BACKERS OF CHAMP CONTINUE TO PLACE MONEY AT 7-5 ODDS

McLarnin Has but Little Chance To Win, According to Dope

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 10—Somewhere in the same ward with the third baseman who thought Babe Ruth was going to bunt should be carefully confined the gent or gents who thought Sammy Mandell was worth eight dollars against Jimmy McLarnin's five for the lightweight championship meeting at the Polo Grounds tomorrow night. The writer admits that he hasn't encountered this benefactor in the flesh, or even the sack suit; but neither has he seen the man who says he swallowed a billiard ball.

Both are taken for granted and on faith, that being the only thing to do in a case like this—take them. They must be wrong or they wouldn't claim they did it.

Make Even Bet

However, it is not the writer's wish to suggest that Mandell is due to blow this one. The claim that Samuel will take walk to the decision has been so insistent I am almost convinced that he will. He looks like a man who is worth a bet and the kind I mean is the $10,000 bet that is supposed to have been made at even money last night.

The idea in this transaction was that those who figured in it were a couple of big coffee men from the automat or something and it is the sport of the thing and not the money that counted.

Anyhow, that would seem to be the way to bet this one—even money, provided you give me Mandell.

That eight to five earlier in the week was a mild form of dementia. The seven to five prevailing today proved a turn for the better, although not quite a symptom of impending convalescence. The mugg who doesn't get as good as 6 to 5 for him Mandell money is a very sick man and won't recover until they give away sense with the horse.

Remember Sid Terris?

It may or may not be important that those who like Mandell so well are about the same worthies who said Sid Terris was a pushin' against McLarnin. They thought weight-making would get James that time. Now that they know McLarnin can scoff at the scales, they are figuring Mandell will show him too many gloves in a manner much too intimate for comfort.

The light does figure that way, at that, provided everything is carried through according to script. If it isn't, nothing will be carried through, not even Mandell. He will be carried out.

The right hand that leveled Terris in the first minute of play is one of the finest the writer ever has seen.

Most men can't really swim, but only one in twenty admits it.

BEAT BUCYRUS

Marion Masonic Team Trounces Crawford County Nine

Scoring 11 runs in the first inning the Marion Masonic recreation ball team Monday night defeated Bucyrus 16 to 2.

The local team scored 12 hits taking advantage of nine errors on the Bucyrus side of the line-up.

The score:

Reports Say Olympic Stars Will Turn To Pro Sports

BY FRANK G. MENKE

Fear is percolating through the sanctums of the amateur athletic associations.

They're apprehensive that the amateur stars of the coming Olympics may turn "pro" this autumn and thus raise havoc with their hopes of displaying those boys in amateur raiment before enthusiastic audiences.

So long as the Dellart Hubbards Sabin Carrs, Harold Osborns, Paavo Nurmis, Otto Peltzers, Willie Ritolas and the others remain amateurs it means that whenever they exhibit on these shores the A. A. U. or allied organizations alone collect the admission money.

But, if these boys turned professional after the Olympics of 1928—dear, dear, what a catastrophe! For this would mean that the organizations would have no world champions to exhibit in meets during the winter of 1928-29 and thus profits, through the efforts of the unpaid athletes, would dwindle.

Would Lower Status

Likewise—and here's the rub for the amateur organizations—if those boys became "pro's" and decided to take part in a series of athletic meets in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Cincinnati, St. Louis and elsewhere, they'd put the amateur meets into the class of lowly minor events.

For an A. A. U. meet without the star performers of the Olympic games of this year would be like the Yankees without Babe Ruth Lou Gehrig, Herb Pennock, Tony Lazzeri, Bob Meusel, Joe Dugan and Miller Huggins.

The threat that many of the men who will perform in the Olympics this year will turn "pro" when the international meet is done is a serious one.

Started in Europe

The first whisper of it came from Europe in reports that Nurmi had grown weary of running for a few medals, glory and dear old Finland.

Nurmi, it is said, has concluded, that medals are nice things to hang on the walls and glory is all right in its place but that it really isn't anything a bloke can use in the after years, to buy herring and rye bread for the inner man.

Nurmi is supposed to have figured it out that he has at least two seasons of fast galloping left in these legs of his and that if all things work out as is hoped he can earn $25,000 or so by being a "pro" runner appearing in competitions in the U. S. A. and elsewhere.

Ritola Has Idea

The reports have it that Willie Ritola, another fleet Finn, Seraphin Martin, the great French distance man, Wide, Borg and a few more stars in various parts of Europe are going to lay aside their amateur togas when the Olympics games are over form a "pro" team and tour the world.

If they take the hurdle its certain that other amateur stars of Europe will do the same thing. When they come to the U. S. A. they undoubtedly will find plenty of Americans to join them under the standard of professionalism.

At least 40 men who are outstanding candidates for the American Olympic team of 1928 are of such age that they hardly would have a chance of making the team in 1932.

Faced by going into final retirement as amateurs, or by becoming "pros" through 1929 and cashing in tremendously on their athletic prowess—well it's got difficult to vision just what course they will pursue.

Hence the atmosphere of gloom pervading the apartments of the amateur organizations, for the success of their big meets, including the Olympics, depends upon the appearance of the

By defeating two of the strongest teams in Sunday School League No. 1, St. Mary's recreation ball nine looms as the outstanding contender for the pennant this year.

The Irish opened the season last week by trouncing Calvary and last night Trinity was handed a 7 to 5 beating. Calvary holds the city title while Trinity won the championship in League No. 2 last season.

St. Mary's is the only team that has displayed real form so far this year. Epworth Seniors are tied for first place with the Saints having defeated John Clark's class of Epworth last night. Clark's team has failed to chalk up a win in two starts.

Calvary finally got started last night when they defeated Presbyterian No. 1, 9 to 0. Gruber was master of the situation throughout and Finney Gibson added to his many honors by smacking a home run with bases loaded.

Wesley also broke into the limelight by a well earned victory over Central Christians after losing its opening game of the season.

Tonight's teams of the Industrial League will play off postponed games of last week. The regular schedule of the league will be played off Thursday night. The 10 teams of the Commercial league will battle Friday night.

YOUNG SWIMMING VETERAN

This seeming contradiction in terminology is none the less accurate as descriptive of Miss Eleanor Holm of New York, whose years are a paltry fourteen, but whose experience as a competitive swimmer already lists her among the veterans. She is a member of the Women's Swimming Association of New York and it is almost certain that she will be a member of the U. S. Olympic swimming team.

BILL ROSE TO HURL AGAINST LOCAL NINE

Strong Ball Team Booked for Lincoln Park Contest

Bill Rose will be seen in action again on the local diamonds Sunday when he will hurl for the Elyria Eagles against Marion at Lincoln Park.

The Elyria aggregation is much improved over the team that played last year. Many players from the old Richwine team have been added to the line-up.

Assisting Rose in the pitching box will be Strickladt, a man who was able to beat Marion last season. The visiting outfield is considered the strongest in Lorain County with Fitzpatrick, C. Wragg and Jacobs during most of the work.

The local Eagles team is recovering from the 10-inning defeat handed them last Sunday by the House of David. Manager Francis Bacon is expected to make several changes in his line-up for Sunday's contest.

RIPE TOBACCO LONG-FILLER CIGAR

For a Nickel! . . . Imagine!

Never since "nickel" first meant five cents has it meant mild, sweet tobacco fragrance such as it brings to you in Havana Ribbon cigars. No kidding. No loose talk. Because there isn't another nickel cigar in the world that's produced in large volume of such tobacco. No bitter-tasting under-ripe leaves; no insipid over-ripe leaves. Only fully-ripe middle leaves from choice tobacco plants, aged and cured to a mellow-mildness not excelled in any cigar for the price!

If you think this a pipe-dream, prod yourself. Dig up a nickel. Light up a Havana Ribbon and you'll realize that there sure has been some progress in cigar-making and cigar values.

Don't confuse Havana Ribbon with five-centers made from "clippings" or short ends of tobacco leaves that crumble and come out in your mouth. Havana Ribbon is a long-filler cigar. For five cents! Also sold in Practical Pocket packages of five cigars.

STATE HIGH TRACK TITLES AT STAKE

School Athletes Will Compete in Meet at Ohio Stadium May 25 and 26

Columbus, May 16—State championships in track and field events of high schools will be decided at the annual meet sponsored by Ohio State University at the Ohio Stadium, May 25 and 26.

A limited number of entries, district meet winners and individual athletes who place in events of the district gathering, will be permitted to meet for the annual event this year. Entries will be made from the eight Ohio districts. Competitions for the right to go to the state meet are to be held in a majority of the districts next Saturday.

Three divisions, representing Class A, B and C high schools of the state which last year brought more than 1,100 athletes into the contests, will again be represented this spring. Class C entries will be represented by athletes of county schools while the first two classes will be made up of town and city high schools, according to the size of the institution.

Class C field event finals will be run off the opening day of the meet, Friday, along with the preliminaries in track events of all classes, semi-final events in the track section and finals of the field events in the Class B division will be on the program for Saturday morning. Track event finals in all of the classes and finals in the field events of Class A will take place Saturday afternoon.

Because of the large number of entries expected, plans are under way to run the one-half mile race of Classes A and B in sections. The winners will be decided on the basis of time made in any of the heats.

Harry Swain of Columbus, official starter of the Ohio Relays, will again be in that position for the high school event. E. T. Cook of Dayton will be referee.

The distinction of being the oldest woman station agent and telegraph operator in the United States in point of service belongs to Miss Minnie H. Smith, who has held these positions at Zumbro Falls, Minn., for 47 years.

BIG TEN COLLEGIATE GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP SLATED FOR MAY

Matches Will Be Held in Columbus at Scioto Country Club

Columbus, May 16—Midwest collegiate golf championships of Big Ten will be decided here when niblick wielders of Big Ten Conference schools meet in a tournament to be held at the Scioto Country Club, May 24 and 25.

Representatives of every Big Ten university which will bring the entire list to nearly 40 contestants, are expected to take part in the meet, according to George W. Trautman, assistant physical director of Ohio State University who is one of the officials in charge of the tournament.

Chief among the many noted collegiate golfers who will do a turn over the Shole course in the tournament is Lester Bolstead, of Minnesota, who holds the title of National Public Links Champion, last year. Other conference champions of the various Western Conference universities are slated to take part.

Ohio State University golf team, which has yet been undefeated this season will send an array of four brilliant link-men against the representatives of the invading schools. Ohio State men who oppose the Big Ten School golfers include: Alfred Sarazen and Howard Park both of Columbus, Allen Loop of Toledo and Wilbur Shaute, of Danville, Ill. George Sargeant, of Columbus, a veteran of the links, is coach of the Buckeye team.

Mme. Lis Jacobsen, celebrated Danish natural scientist, has been invited to deliver a lecture in the Sorbonne. It is believed to be the first time a woman has lectured in the great French institution of learning.

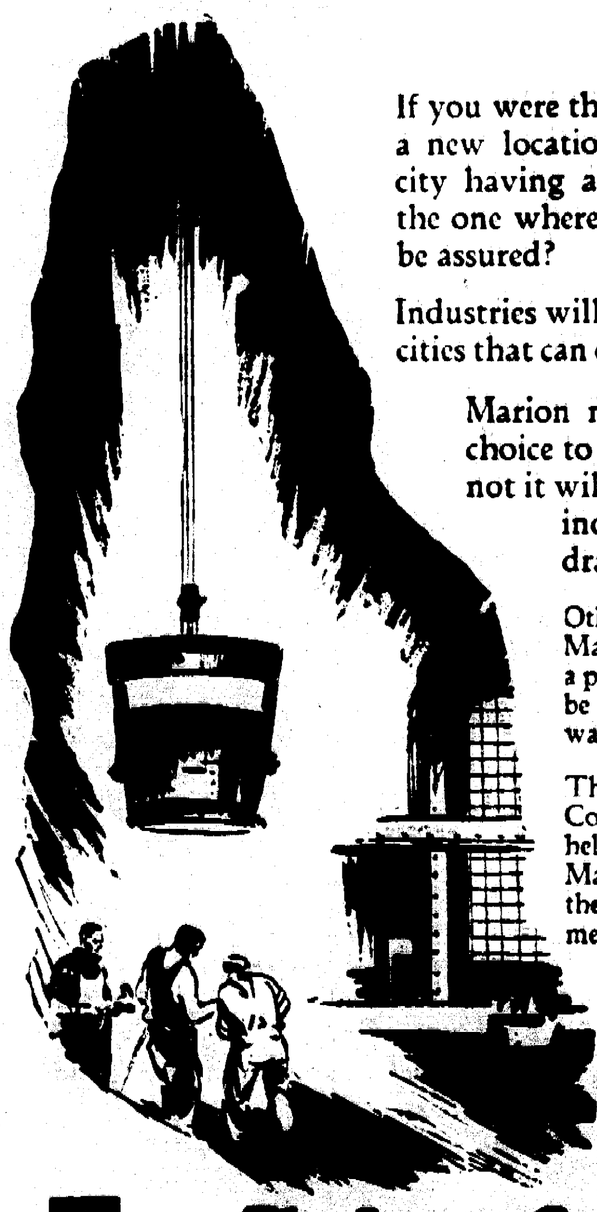
You Can Decide the Future Today



If you were the head of an industry looking for a new location where would you go—to the city having an adequate supply of gas or to the one where permanent gas service could not be assured?

Industries will not take chances. They select the cities that can offer them the most in fuel supply.

Marion now awaits a decision. It has a choice to make that will decide whether or not it will be ranked among the prosperous industrial centers or be content to drag along.

Other cities are making efforts to attract Marion's industries. If these cities can offer a permanent supply of gas Marion will soon be faced with industrial and employment want.

The choice rests with Marion. Your Gas Company is ready to do all in its power to help Marion grow. Gas is the lifeblood of Marion's industries and your recognition of the fact that GAS IS WORTH MORE means assuring the future of Marion.

THE GUMPS — BACK IN THE OLD NEIGHBORHOOD — BY SIDNEY SMITH

THERE GOES OUR NEIGHBOR - MR. JERIMIAH GOLD - HE LOOKS LIKE AN OLD FASHIONED 'IN TYPE' - I'LL BET HE VOTES A STRAIGHT PARTY TICKET - AND THINKS THE WORLD STOPPED GOING ROUND AFTER THE CHICAGO WORLD'S FAIR -
MAYBE HE'S A BIT OLD FASHIONED - BUT HE'S A GOOD HONEST MAN - WHO TAKES CARE OF HIS FAMILY - AND HAS THE OLD FASHIONED HABIT OF MINDING HIS OWN BUSINESS
I'M NOT KNOCKING HIM - BEING OLD FASHIONED IS NOT A CRIMINAL OFFENCE - SHAKESPEARE IS AN OLD FASHIONED WRITER - BUT I LIKE HIM BETTER THAN THE ULTRA - MODERN PAPER SPOILERS - AND MRS. GOLD IS JUST A SWEET OLD FASHIONED LADY - WHO NEVER HAD HER FACE LIFTED - OR HER IDEALS LOWERED - AND I'LL BET SHE CAN MAKE A BETTER CLUB SANDWICH THAN ANY CLUB WOMAN IN AMERICA -
IN A HOUSE THAT'S SURROUNDED BY GOOD NEIGHBORS - YOU HAVE A BEAUTIFUL OUTLOOK ON ALL SIDES - I SOMETIMES THINK THE REASON ADAM AND EVE MOVED OUT OF THE GARDEN OF PARADISE - WAS BECAUSE THEY WANTED TO FIND A HOME WHERE THEY COULD HAVE NICE NEIGHBORS —

Furious Upbuilding of Stocks Gives Way to Hasty Selling

Speculative Fireworks Start Anew Buying of Wright and Curtiss Aero

New York, May 16—Furious upbuilding of plane, motor, copper and steel stocks in a bull market gave way in the late session to selling movement, as shrewd traders switched their stocks on a scramble to take profits. Sharp losses were thrown about the list, the ticker ran behind hourly and Wall Street was a scene of the greatest confusion.

The speculative fireworks started with the huge influx of buying demand for Wright and Curtiss aviation stocks. Details of the new country-wide transcontinental plane service issued by prominent officials of the new transport company suggested a broad field for the operations of the manufacturers of flying machines, with commensurate possibilities for profit-making.

Wright Aero jumped 27 points to 241 before the demands of outside traders could be satisfied and Curtiss gained 21 points at 189. Valuable rights have been extended to Wright Aero stockholders in their privilege to subscribe for 50,000 new shares at par, contrasted with the current price of $240 for the stock. These rights are valued at about $15 a share and may be sold at that price in the market today.

The motor stocks and the coppers moved forward a few more points in the first period, with several huge blocks of the shares passing through the market. Packard took the spotlight at the start, when the stock reached a new high above 81, but all of the motor shares encountered heavy profit taking at the peak prices of the day and further progress was cut off.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, May 16 — An upturn in grain prices at the Board of Trade yesterday broke a spell of pessimism and started anew the hope of a return to bull markets. Wheat was strong all day after a slight dip at the opening and closed with a gain of between 2 and 3 cents. Corn recovered from an early decline and looked strong at the finish according to the Herald and Examiner.

At the end wheat was up 2¼ to 2⅜, corn was 1⅜ to 1½ higher, oats were ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, rye was 1¼ to 2½ up.

The action of the market would have been more impressive if it had not been known that heavy short covering was under way. It was that which may have given both wheat and corn most of their strength.

Bank Spreading in Volume

Bank-spreading in wheat between here and Winnipeg ran into large volume. It was being bought here and sold up there.

Many persons ask me if I think the market has "turned." No I don't. Wheat may work somewhat higher, but buying on these bulges may be dangerous trading.

The conditions surrounding the Spring wheat acreage are going to be the big influence on the market from now on, and these are improving. The weather bureau reported rain in our Northwest; and the weather forecast generally over the Spring wheat belt in this country gives promise of liberal moisture.

There is no condition of immediate acuteness in the wheat situation that I can see to force prices decidedly higher at this time, when the country and other countries are facing the near approach of the Winter wheat harvest.

Corn showed more strength yesterday than for a long time. But that statement does not mean so much as it seems. Corn may work higher, but it also may turn 'round and again become a market of busted hopes.

But even so, that may have no significance as a [illegible] of the action of corn for a long [illegible] wheat, it may be up and [illegible] ing, perhaps, for a time, [illegible] ance at bottom prices [illegible] shown recently.

However, with every this time of an [illegible] the average day [illegible] look is not a [illegible] long [illegible] from [illegible]

GROUP SEEKS CUT IN INHERITANCE TAX

Bipartisan Senators' Action Incenses Insurgent Leaders in Capital

Washington, May 16—Although Insurgent leaders warned that the effort might defeat all tax relief legislation at the present session of Congress, a bipartisan group of senators today sought to amend the $227,000,000 tax bill to include the repeal or at least reduction of the federal inheritance tax.

The drive was doomed to defeat but it incensed Insurgent leaders, who formed a coalition with the administration forces to keep tax reduction within the limit set by the Treasury. The Insurgents had been promised that if they supported the administration bill no effort would be made to repeal the inheritance tax. Most of the administration senators planned to vote with the Insurgents against repeal of the tax, in view of the agreement and its defeat thus was assured.

Two amendments, however, were sponsored by Senator Bingham, Republican of Connecticut, one would repeal the tax entirely. The other would repeal the provision returning 80 per cent of the tax collected to the state in which it was levied, and would reduce the taxes to a scale starting with two-tenths of one per cent on estates over $50,000 and running to a maximum of 4 percent on estates of $10,000,000.

It was no secret that Bingham acted for Senator David Reed Republican of Pennsylvania, the "spokesman" in the Senate for Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon.

DAM BILL BACKERS CAMPAIGN FOR VOTES

Prospect of Adjournment Being Set Back Gives New Hope

Washington, May 16—Flushed with their triumph in securing a rule for consideration of the Boulder Canyon Dam bill, backers of the measure today began a drive to roll up the votes necessary to send the bill to the White House before adjournment.

The prospect of adjournment being set back as a result of fights over the tax and urgent deficiency bills gave advocates of the legislation new hope that that can pass it handily in the House and break the threatened filibuster in the Senate.

For the first time in their two-year fight against filibustering tactics, apparent coldness of House leaders and opposition of the "power trust," sponsors of the bill found themselves occupying a strategic position.

It will be presented to Congress as a measure to save the people of the Imperial Valley of California from being engulfed in a flood which would take a toll of life far greater than the Mississippi disaster of 1927.

With one memorable flood as mute witness to the destructive power of the Colorado River when its flood waters rush into California and Arizona Valleys, advocates of the measure declared that Congress must pass the bill or bear the responsibility for a great disaster.

Representative Smith, Republican of Idaho, chairman of the House Irrigation Committee, today predicted that the House would indorse the bill. He pointed out that his committee voted for the bill four different times and for two years has been seeking a chance for action on the floor.

YOU'LL LIKE TRADING AT SCHAFFNER'S

Keeping
Up-to-date---

These days families want to be up-to-date in home furnishings just as much as they wish to keep up-to-date with their wearing apparel, with the car they drive, etc. This is due to the times we are living in.

Families become tired of looking at and living with old-fashioned furniture every day and every day, month after month and year after year. It gets on your nerves, you are uncomfortable and don't know why. Often it's the environment caused by living with old and worn furniture. Often your visiting friends "wonder why."

A change of scenery within the home will do you good. Your no-longer-wanted furniture has a good cash value here at Schaffner's, which you can apply on the purchase price of the new furniture you buy.

Through our "trade-in" or Exchange Department you can make the change, one room after another, or even where single pieces or suites are to be traded in.

Step in the store the first time you are by this way and let us talk it over.

NOTED RIDER

Practically all equestrians with the leading circuses are foreign born, as American girls seemingly have no desire to become proficient at bare-back riding. However there is one exception and she is Miss Lulu Davenport, noted member of the Davenport Family of Riders. This act is a feature of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus coming to Marion for afternoon and night exhibitions May 23rd.

In a recent interview Miss Davenport said she did not blame girls for passing us bare-back riding as a profession, as it took years and years of practice. In addition one had to keep in condition every day. Miss Davenport made her debut in the ring at the age of 10 years, and she has been riding since barely able to stand upon a horse. And it was ten years later before she became noted for her skill.

Miss Davenport has for the past few years been recognized as one of the foremost women riders of all time. Those who witness the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus will see a woman who is as competent a bare-back rider as mere man.

FLOYD DAVIS FOUND NOT GUILTY BY JURY

Verdict Returned as Climax to Fistic Altercation on Feb. 5

Floyd Davis, tried in Common Pleas Court yesterday on a charge of assault and battery, was found not guilty after the jury had deliberated about a half hour.

Davis was indicted by the grand jury a week ago Tuesday on a charge of assaulting Roy Columber, fireman at the Marion County Children's Home.

The suit was the outgrowth of a fight between Davis and Columber last Feb. 5 in which Davis received a broken tooth and cuts about the face and Columber suffered a cut across the head.

The fight started when Davis called at the Children's Home to reclaim a ring and a purse he had given a woman employed at the home. Instead of delivering the articles in person she sent them out with Columber. The fight followed.

Davis was bound over to the grand jury by Municipal Judge William R. Martin.

Louis E. Myers represented the defendant. Prosecuting Attorney Frank Wiedemann prosecuted the case for the state.

Bond for Curtis Sheppard, indicted on two counts by the grand jury, has been fixed by Common Pleas Court at $1,500. Sheppard is charged with breaking into the Abel & Wroten poolroom and attempting to force a safe. When his trial comes before the court on May 31 he will be defended by Louis E. Myers and the law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser.

Divorce Granted

Albert V. Rank was granted a divorce in Common Pleas Court yesterday afternoon from Anna M. Rank on grounds of gross neglect. The case was heard Monday, Louis E. Myers represented the plaintiff.

DATE SET HERE FOR ANNUAL POPPY SALE

American Legion and Auxiliary Sponsor Event Planned for May 26

Saturday, May 26, has been set as the date of the annual poppy sale of members of Bird McGinnis Post, No. 202, American Legion and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Legion. The sale is held by Legions and Auxiliaries annually on the Saturday before Decoration Day, throughout the country.

The poppies, "memorial flower" of the Legion, are to be worn on Decoration Day in memory of World War soldiers, who died in service.

The sale this year is in charge of a committee comprised of Mrs. Don Jones, chairman, Mrs. George T. Gecan, Mrs. Charles Wayland, and Mrs. Charles Howard. The committee members are at work at the present time preparing teams and team chairmen for the sale.

The little red poppy represents the sacrifical blood of the boys who fell in the war. The poppies are made by disabled service men in national hospitals and the money is used in caring for disabled veterans and their wives and families.

He Walked With Crutches Before Taking Konjola

His Legs Were Crippled With Rheumatism; Now Enjoys Good Health.

MR. E. J. WEYANT

"I surely want to indorse Konjola because it is the first medicine to restore my health after fifteen years of suffering," said Mr. C. E. Weyant, 315 North 14th Street, Steubenville, Ohio.

"Rheumatism settled in my hip joints and knees. I was unable to stand or get long and my ankles were so swollen I had to wear slippers. The pain grew worse and I was laid up for a week and then had to use crutches. Besides this misery my kidneys bothered me and I never got the proper rest at night. My back was always tired and achy. My stomach also gave me some trouble and I had to be very careful what I ate.

"I spent hundreds of dollars for relief before I got Konjola. Now I am in perfect health because I have finished a treatment of this medicine and the rheumatism is entirely gone. There is not an ache or pain in any part of my body. The kidney trouble disappeared and my stomach is so much better I can eat anything I want. Konjola was a Godsend to me and I shall always recommend this medicine."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this locality.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

Columbus, May 16—"Another bank robbery!" That was the cry at police station here this morning when a burglar alarm call was received from the Commercial National Bank in the heart of the downtown section here. Police squads rushed to the scene. When they arrived at the bank they were told that James Guthrie, negro porter, had stepped on the alarm by mistake. The commanding sergeant reported back to his captain, "just another false alarm."

BEAUTY IN CITIES URGED BY COOLIDGE

of art that requires more emphasis. We need to put more effort into transplanting art into the daily life of the people. If we could surround ourselves with the forms of beauty, the evil things of life would tend to disappear and our moral standards would be raised. "Through our contact with the beautiful we see more of the truth and are brought into closer harmony with the infinite.

The president lauded the recent practice of inaugurating zoning laws in the larger communities. He said they had brought about a distinctive type of American business architecture which had been much admired by visitors from abroad.

Beauty Is Reality

"Our country has reached a position where this beauty is no longer a visionary desire but is becoming an actual reality," he continued. "With general prosperity, with high wages, with reasonable hours of labor, has come both the means and the time to cultivate the artistic spirit. Philanthropy has given the people access to all that is most beautiful in form and color. It is theirs without money and without price, if they will but go and possess it.

"Out of our agriculture, our commerce and our industry, we can already see emerging a new spirit. The potential is becoming actual. Through science and invention, gradually but surely, we are banishing the drudgery of existence and bringing into every avenue of living a touch of the artistic. We are working out the ideal under which everyone will realize that they are artists, in their employment, in their recreation, and in their relations, one with another.

"It is to this high calling that the members of your association have dedicated themselves. The service which they are rendering is of inestimable value for the advancement of an enlightened civilization."

SINCLAIR TO RETURN COMPANY OIL STOCK

Oil Teapot Dome Scandal Figure Accepted by Board

New York, May 16—Another chapter in the Teapot Dome scandal was written today when Harry F. Sinclair, president of the Sinclair Oil Co. at the annual meeting of the corporation offered to return to the company the 250,000 shares of Sinclair stock which he received for 500,000 shares of Mammoth Oil Co. stock. Sinclair also offered to pay back $4,000,000 in cash which he had received as dividends on the Sinclair stock. The directors accepted the offer.

The Mammoth Oil Co. was formed by Sinclair and his associates to develop the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve in Wyoming. On March, 1924, the United States government filed suit in the Federal Court for the cancellation of the contract.

FLIERS SET RECORD ON SOUTHERN FLIGHT

Air Tour Being Made To Determine Best Canal Zone Route

Dayton, May 16—After flying 5,530 miles in 31 hours from France Field, Colon, Panama, for an army record, Lieuts. James E. Parker, Fort Ben Harrison, Indianapolis, and Robert Douglas, Selfridge Field, Mich., were today awaiting favorable weather in order to continue their tour to Washington. The men are flying a Boeing army pursuit ship.

The object of the air tour, according to officials at Wright Field, is to determine the shortest air route between Washington and the Canal Zone.

The men left Colon Saturday and have been making their way by easy stages. The fliers made 1,200 miles yesterday, stopping at Tampico and St. Louis.

According to army officials here, the time, 31 hours for 5,530 miles is the best on record for this type of ship.

HARDING IS PRAISED BY SECRETARY DAVIS

Labor Department Head Addresses Breakfast Club at Columbus

was confronted with the task of stabilizing labor and industry. In his campaign speeches Harding promised to bring the country back to normalcy. He did this. The proof of statesmanship is the results one's policies effect. What better proof have we of this than in the Harding administration?" Davis said.

Davis vigorously attacked the newspapers and magazines that have assailed Harding or his administration.

Coolidge, Davis said, has followed in the footsteps of Harding. Harding was the champion of the common people. Harding possessed the virtues we expect to find in other men but which we never find under the "need test."

With the final statement of praise to Ohio's president, Davis concluded his speech. He was thanked profusely by Lentz for attending the breakfast.

Secretary Davis said in part:

"The proof of statesmanship is found in the effect of the policies which men favor. There are those who say that Mr. Harding was merely a man of his time. That sort of talk is mere nonsense. What would we think of a man who, in the old days when the only means of locomotion available was a horse, refused to use a horse because he had a dream of a steam engine and a locomotive. A great man is one who used his hour in the only fashion that it can be used, and does not waste it by idle dreaming.

"What we need in public life more than anything else is men of common sense. The man who possesses in large measure this quality will accomplish more for his people than the man possessing the most brilliant gifts who is destitute of it. Mr. Harding was a man of admirable common sense. He was human through and through, and he did not ask to be other than human. As I see him, he was typically American. I believe that America will always be governed better by one who is typically American than by one who is not typical of his country, even though the latter may be regarded by history as the greater man.

"President Coolidge once said, and it was a great saying, 'We have staked America on the potential capacity of the average citizen.' Mr. Harding stood for such, he believed in such. He was proud of prosperity of which everyone enjoys a share. . . .

"I would not leave an impression in your minds, because I have spoken of Mr. Harding as a realist, that he did not possess high ideals. He did possess them. Mr. Harding was deeply religious and he belonged to the church. He did not attend church because he was conscious of no imperfections within himself; he went because he was conscious of such imperfection. We all go to confess that we have done the things that we ought not to have done, and have left undone the things that we ought to have done, and such virtues as may exist in us comes largely from our frankness in confessing our faults. We hear altogether too much about the faults of others and too little of the blessings that come from their lives. Those who knew President Harding were aware that none was more kindly at heart or more desirous of doing good.

Sought To Be Good

"I do not say that Mr. Harding was a perfect man. There has been only one perfect man on this earth, and the one perfect man died, rejected and reviled, upon the Cross. Mr. Harding was human, and he never professed to be other than human, but he was incapable of a despicable act. His faults, such as they were, were the faults of our common human nature.

"I knew Mr. Harding for many years prior to his election as president, and I never knew a man who sought more earnestly to do good, or whose instincts were kindlier. It seems but yesterday, though it was on the tenth of January, 1921, that he called me to his home at Marion to offer me the position in his Cabinet which I was destined to fill. I hesitated about accepting it, because I was under contract with the Loyal Order of Moose at the time. But Mr. Harding not only urged me to accept the position as Secretary of Labor, he told me that my position in this fraternity would in no way interfere with my duties as a member of his Cabinet, and it was with this understanding that I finally accepted the appointment.

Friend of Common People

"He told me that, as secretary of labor, I would get a picture of the industrial situation in the United States which could not be obtained otherwise. What he said proved true. My outlook in life has increased many fold since I became a member of the President's Cabinet, and I am sure that you will agree with me that my official position has interfered in no way with my labors in fraternalism.

"Mr. Harding was a friend and champion of the common people. I want to emphasize this fact. It is one which has not been true of every American politician, statesman or thinker. Only a short time ago an article appeared in one of the leading American magazines, by a prominent American historian, on 'The Unknown Soldier.' 'If instead of the great man we worship the little one, if instead of occupying our thoughts with the rare and the fine and the great we devote all our time and admiration to the petty, the commonplace, the plain and common, are we not likely ourselves to become more and more like objects we worship? Why spend laborious nights in study to train our minds, why attempt to mould our characters to something higher than the mob, why strive to sit ourselves to lead, if, after all, we are still no better than the led, and the world's leaders and benefactors are really outranked by Sal the sandwich slinger, and Bill the stoker?'

Among His Utterances

"There spoke the aristocratic mind. But Mr. Harding had scant sympathy with this type of mind. He agreed with the remark by Abraham Lincoln that 'God must have loved the common people, He made so many of them.' When President Harding spoke at the burial of America's Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery he exemplified his love and affection for the common people by concluding his heartfelt tribute to the patriot dead with the universal prayer of faith: 'Our Father which art in Heaven.'

"Nothing could more fittingly reveal the simple faith and hope of this kindly and sympathetic man. Shall we condemn him for this attitude? Praise the aristocratic type of mind as much as you will, as much as it deserves, but what could it have been able to accomplish if it had not been for these common folk whom it affects to look down upon? President Harding did not agree with the ancient notion that a few were born to enjoy all the good things of life, and that the many were born only to hew wood and draw water without more than a mere subsistence in compensation for their toil. . . .

"Among the utterances of Mr. Harding we find the following: 'Less government in business and more business in government.'

"The worker's lowest wage must be enough for comfort, enough to make his house a home, enough to insure him that the struggle for existence will not crowd out the things worth existing for.'

"Speaking of the railroad workers, he said, 'I want the man on the railroad to have a good wage. I want the man who holds the throttle of the train that speeds across the continent through the night to be a happy man. He cannot be unless he is well paid.'

Worthy of Hire

"In all his speeches which involve the problem of labor, one finds the same attitude. He believed that the laborer was worthy of his hire. A world in which the employer is prosperous at the expense of the employe is one in which Mr. Harding never felt at home. One of his strongest reasons for believing in a protective tariff was his conviction that a protective tariff means high wages—a least in America; and you could not interest him by trying to show that free trade or a tariff for revenue only would reduce the price of goods.

"I am confident that the time is not distant when the people of this great country will come to know their late president for the person he was, and that they will then realize that Mr. Harding was a great man, a great President. Mr. Harding's nature was so kindly that many who professed friendship for him took advantage of his warm-hearted nature. That is the real explanation of any criticism that we hear in certain quarters today. There is no more despicable member of mankind than the man who takes advantage of another's kindness to advance himself into a high position and then abuse the confidence and trust of the one who sought to honor him.

Mr. Harding died in office, as five other American presidents have died, worn out by the manifold duties of that office. We know not what he might have accomplished for the people whom he loved, if his life had been spared. But his record is irreproachable. He did much that the historians of the future will remember and praise. When the complete story of his administration is written, the people of this country will know that they had a Chief Magistrate worthy of the highest honor, and they will delight to honor him.

Incapable of Jealousy

"I am sure that no man appreciates more the noble qualities of the man whom we honor today than he who succeeded him as the chief magistrate of the republic. President Coolidge has followed in the footsteps of President Harding, and the policies which he has advocated are, in the main, the policies of his predecessor. Mr. Harding during his term of office, honored Mr. Coolidge by inviting him to attend the meetings of his cabinet, an honor that I believe no other American president ever extended to a vice president.

"In Mr. Harding there was nothing mean, low or grovelling. He was incapable of petty jealousies. He cared little who received the credit for achievements during his term of office, so long as there were achievements to be recorded. He desired only to see the American people prosperous and contented, and we know that during his administration they were prosperous and contented to a degree greater than had ever been witnessed during the administration of any previous president. . . .

"I have no fear that the people of America will forget what they owe to Mr. Harding. His fame will increase with the ages, the people will do justice to him and to his memory. He was a great man, and his greatness will be perceived by all. He died in office a martyr to duty, but he is destined to receive in the future his just meed of praise.

"In the light of passing years my personal and official contacts with Warren G. Harding make his name more illustrious and endearing to me. Friend of humanity, his active career was a radiant light of friendliness—a friendship in actions—a sympathy that helped rather than ended in mere sympathetic words. He possessed the virtues we look for in the careers of our heroes and public men and seldom find under the acid test.

Faith Never Wavered

"He has suffered the test God comes with the goodness of a great heart. Patient unto the last, his faith in his fellow men never wavered—and in the clear spotless light of Love he stood on the Mount and glorified as few other men in history outside of Lincoln, the glory of the Golden Rule so often forcluded in the platitudes of public utterances, but, alas, so seldom evidenced in official or personal action.

"I can hear his cheery voice calling me 'Jim' as he would a brother—he could place his hands on your shoulder and give you a benediction of fraternal affection without affectation.

"I have been rereading a recent biography written in all the fervor of friendship which gives an accurate reflection of the love and admiration of Warren G. Harding during the time which he lived and at the time he finished his earthly course. What would we not give to have a biography of Lincoln meaning and reflecting so accurately that sentiment and faith towards the great Emancipator at the time he was making history. The later so called 'critical analysis' by self-appointed judges—of a place in history of great men is so befuddled with the ego of writers and the absence of any real feeling of the times in which an eminent man lived, that they seek first to tear down all the tattered ensigns of historical record and truth to establish some pet notions of their own. But their insidious and satiric estimates live only as long as the froth of the sensation lusts for the deep waters of a big, broad, sympathetic soulful life cannot be clouded by mists of salacious suggestion and the slipshod tongue of gossip, with which every eminent man has been assailed."

This much may be said for soviet Russia: as a horrible example of communism she possibly may be worth all she has cost civilization.

A Washington wire says a house test vote shows that the farm relief bill lacks ten votes to pass it over a veto. Some will be inclined to look upon that lack as a country-wide relief.

In twelve cases arising out of the failure of the Butler County State bank at El Dorado, Kansas, the supreme court of the United States has sustained the Kansas law under which directors of state banks are held liable for deposits received after their bank becomes insolvent, by which we glean what's the matter with at least a portion of Kansas.

Those misgoverning soviet Russia are beginning to realize the fact that their industrial theories might work out better were it not for the wearing out of machinery for the replacement of which an adequate fund has not been set aside.

A Chicago girl told the police up there that she had given a doctor who calls himself "Lahiss, the New Teacher," $165 to cause her to become smart and that she was "just as dumb as ever." We will say this for the doctor, the girl's story shows that she didn't possess much upon which to work.

Speaker Longworth is of the opinion that congress probably will adjourn about June 1. If it does, it will either have to get a move on itself or be long remembered as the congress short on accomplishment.

The discovery that the friends of Al. Smith have expended $100,000 in behalf of their favorite for the presidency has caused Senator Hollis to become active again after two or three days of comparative quiet. There's no getting away from the fact that the senate is doing far too much "investigating."

One Illinois judge fined another three dollars on a drunkenness charge upon the plea of the offender that "you might be brought before me some time and I can treat you likewise." At this distance, it looks as though there should be two bench vacancies out in the Sucker state at once. Here we have another instance to show us that judgeships should be appointive rather than elective offices.

The Public Pays for Protection.

The streets in the uptown business section which have been torn up to permit of the laying of the conduits for the new electric traffic lights are being put into shape, and soon the new lights will be in place and ready for operation.

The change from the old system to the new will mean considerable expense to the city. Whether the new system is enough better than the old to justify the expense entailed by the change will be demonstrated by experience. Certainly the new system will not obstruct the streets, which is a feature in its favor, but, aside from that, the benefit to be derived from it will depend chiefly upon the manner in which observance of the signals is enforced. If the city authorities are indifferent to violations of the traffic lights, any system is worthless no matter how much merit it may, in itself, possess. In fact, unless observance of the signals is enforced, it's a question if any system is not worse than worthless. It's a question if, in such a contingency, any system is not something of a liability—a liability to motorists and pedestrians alike.

If there is general observance of traffic signals, they mean protection to traffic, both wheel and foot, but if general observance is not enforced they may serve but to lead motorists and pedestrians who rely on them into danger. By good luck, thus far, we have been able to escape any serious consequences of reckless or vicious drivers, but it has been more a matter of luck than efficient enforcement.

The great majority of Marion motorists have been observing the lights, but there are in the city some drivers who, we can not do other than believe, have willfully disobeyed them—drivers who have gone straight ahead against the stop signs which were already against them before they got within a hundred feet of the street intersection and who showed by their manner that they felt that their refusal to heed them was a matter over which to be proud. Such vicious drivers as these are a constant menace to traffic, and so long as they are permitted to thus endanger the lives of their fellow-citizens, no system of traffic lights is much of a safeguard to the public.

Let us hope that, with the putting into operation of the new system, there will be a new deal in the matter of enforcement of observance of the signal lights. The public is paying for protection. It is entitled to protection and it should have protection.

Road Costs and Detours Always.

A number of very interesting deductions may be drawn from the announcement of State Highway Director Schlessinger, which reveals that the road work to be done under the supervision of his department the coming summer will cost approximately $30,000,000 and necessitate 136 detours with a total mileage of 632.

True, Director Schlessinger explains that much of this ambitious program is represented by 494 miles of roadway in various stages of completion carried over from last year, but this means little, as there is every indication that there will be a very similar carry-over from this year to next, with its attendant detours, and from next year to the next thereafter, and so on for all time.

According to the director's statement, contracts let since January 1 cover 157 miles, making 690 miles at present under construction, which total will be increased to 752 miles when contracts are let next Friday for sixty-two miles more. Subtracting the 494 miles carried over from either the present total or the total which will obtain at the end of the present week, it is evident that contracts must have been let for thirty-nine miles of roadway last year upon which work of construction was not begun until the present year, for the director's figures show that difference in mileage between the total mileage under construction and the total of the mileage carried over and the mileage contracted for this year. We may naturally anticipate a similar course later on this year.

According to the state highway department's plan, of the approximate total of $30,000,000 to be expended, $4,000,000 is to go for fifty bridges, $2,000,000 for fifteen grade-crossing eliminations, $10,000,000 for 150 miles of construction, $4,000,000 for 150 miles of reconstruction and maintenance, $9,500,000 for 10,000 miles of general maintenance and $2,700,000 for 900 miles of traffic bound construction, the state contributing about $6,500,000 of the cost; the federal government about $3,000,000 and the counties and the railroads about $10,500,000.

These figures may be of chief interest to readers, but to us the most impressive figures in the director's announcement are those showing the expenditures for maintenance and repair, which he places at $12,2000,000. If this means anything, it means that the enormous cost of our roadways is not only to go on indefinitely, but also may be expected to grow, for the greater the mileage of our improved roads the greater we may reasonably figure will be the cost of their upkeep. But there is far more than the matter of cost. This is the age of the motor car, and to enjoy it we must have fine roadways. Few will begrudge the cost in the light of the benefits which result from it and still fewer would be willing to go back to the old conditions. The really disheartening phase of the thing is that this mighty expense or maintenance and repair means that the detours also are to continue indefinitely. The fact that the state of Ohio is going to expend upwards of $12,000,000 for maintenance and repairs annually spells "detours" too plainly to be mistaken. Despite the stunning cost of our highways, we are never going to get full enjoyment out of them. There will always be the detours.

A Tokyo cablessays the Chinese Nationalists will endeavor to involve the United States in the Chinese-Japanese trouble. Here's a case, if there ever were one, where forewarned should prove forearmed against the acme of folly.

Writing to the federal trade commission, Governor Hunt, of Arizona, suggests that the increased land values by which the interests supporting the Boulder dam legislation will profit, in the event that it becomes a law, is a proper field for investigation. Why waste time and means on an investigation to establish something already made so manifest?

The federal supreme court has dismissed the appeal of the Hon. Joseph Saltis, and he will have to go to jail for sixty days and pay a fine of $50 for carrying concealed weapons. Think of a distinguished citizen of Chicago being forced to undergo a humiliation like that!

Prince Carol, of Roumania, is yet in England, not because England wants him, but rather because she can't find a land willing to take him and hesitates about dropping him into the sea. With Carol, it's another case of "all dressed up and no place to go."

Vagrant Verse.

THE OLD WITCH.

The whole day through
She swept with her broom,
Or she sat and wove
At the empty loom,
She wove and mumbled
And shook her head,
And crunched the crust
Of her hard black bread.

And all night long—
It was full o' the moon—
She stirred the pot
With a wooden spoon,
She turned the bird
On an iron spit,
She mixed her a potion
And drank of it.

But she never tasted
The steaming pot,
Nor the spitted bird,
Though the fire flamed hot.
She shook and shivered
And wagged her head,
And crumbled the crust
Of her old dark bread.

She stirred and turned
Till the crack o' dawn,
Till the moon rode low,
And the stars were gone,
The bird was charred,
And the pot was dry,
And the air was rent
With a wracking cry.

* * *

They sought her there
But they found her not;
Only a black moth
Tasting the pot;
Only a curious
Heap of dust,
And a gray mouse munching
A crumbled crust.

Keep Puff and Brush Germ Free.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

You should not touch your nose and lips with dirty hands or a soiled powder puff. Infection is carried that way.

When I see the way women treat their faces with grimy old puffs I wonder that one of them escapes trouble. Colds, influenza and other serious ailments may be conveyed by contaminated fingers.

When one member of a family "takes cold" and goes snuffling around the place, it won't be long before the smeared door knobs and contaminated toilet soap will carry the germs to somebody else. In the course of a few days everybody will have the trouble.

An office, a factory, a senate chamber, will suffer if there is any failure to use the common sense measures of prevention. Failure to observe the simplest rules of hygiene will result in widespread misery.

A while ago I read about a bacteriological examination of a dozen toothbrushes. Twelve men had contributed their used brushes in order that this test might be made. Out of the twelve brushes ten were found to be contaminated with pus producing germs.

Things which you handle every day are certain to become infected with agents of disease. At least they become so dirty as to be filthy, if not capable of producing a serious ailment.

When I see the black and grimy powder-puff of an attractive young woman, I wonder what germs are lurking in its dirty meshes. Really I would give a reasonable sum of money just to satisfy my curiosity as to the bacteriological contents of such a toilet accessory.

Please remember it is not safe to handle your face with dirty hands or to mop it with a filthy powder rag. Your nose and lips are avenues through which disease and death may travel to your vital organs. You can not afford to take chances on your health and you do take chances by doing the things I am railing against. Provide yourself daily with a clean puff, if you must use it.

When you come in from outside wash your hands with soap and water. Scrub them thoroughly and clean your finger nails. Keep your hands clean and be ashamed of them if they are dirty. If your joints are grimy and black, it is because you are lazy and indifferent. You may be indifferent to your looks, but you must not be indifferent to your health. Cleanliness, Godliness and health are closely associated.

Editorial Opinion.

WAR IF NECESSARY.

The present Japanese government, being of a distinctly imperialistic cast, has been compelled to drop its mask of benignity. That the Japanese people are not by any means convinced of the worthiness of the government's policy is amply indicated by the newspaper opposition to intervention in China. It is inconceivable that any enlightened nation could give anything like unanimous approval to the recklessness with which the government has plunged into the Chinese whirlpool.

More than ever it now appears that Japan is likely to find herself opposed by a united China. The unification will not come from acceptance by the southerners of Chang Tso-lin's offer of an armistice. It will come, if it does come, by the absolute elimination of Chang Tso-lin as a factor in Chinese affairs. Not till Chang Tso-lin is sent scuttling to Manchuria or to some remoter refuge will Canton talk peace with Peking. Chang Tso-lin has innumerable smears on his record, but his blackest mark is his past friendliness and cooperation with the Japanese.

Rightly believing that the first work of the Nationalists is to bring about the union of China, Chiang Kai-shek and Feng Yu-hsiang seem about ready to leave Shantung and advance on Peking. But in leaving Shantung to the Japanese they are merely delaying a bloody accounting.

One need not be gifted with the wisdom of a prophet to forecast a settlement which must be disastrous to Japan. As long as the immense Chinese nation remained deaf to the call of progress it was possible for the alert and energetic Japanese to treat China as a minor state. But China is potentially much more powerful than Japan, and an awakened China is sure to call Japan to strict account for the injustice now being perpetrated. It is inconceivable that the Japanese government does not realize this danger. The only conclusion is that Tokio today is willing to commit Japanese posterity to the misery of a tremendous war with the chances strongly against ultimate triumph.

All this rather than retire from Shantung and leave the Chinese Nationalists to fight their own fight in their own way. It is the success of Nationalist China that imperialist Japan most dreads. Common sense Japan has clearer vision, but for the moment common sense in Nippon is under official ban.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HER NATURAL FIELD.

It is no disparagement of Judge Florence Allen, of the Ohio supreme court, to say that she is more convincing in some of her diagnoses in the ethical-social field than she is in the arena of law and politics.

After all, the laws of nature are subject to neither amendment nor repeal; nor do inherent mortal emotions change perceptibly through the centuries. Man is man, and woman is woman.

Francis Parkinson Keyes has interviewed Judge Allen, the article appearing in the June number of Better Homes and Gardens. The part of this interview which intrigued the writer was Judge Allen's definition of the home. She said:

"The home is primarily the place where a family is gathered together in unity and co-operation and affection, a place of melody and harmony, both figuratively and literally. It is secondarily a place where a weary mind and spirit and body may find repose and refuge and respite, where the soul may commune with itself, and with God."

So speaks the divinity in woman's dreams—and so in man's, more dimly.

The home as it should be—as often it really is—is the one fact that justifies the continuance of the race. Neither the jungle life nor Arcadian existence is sufficient to do that. It is not the lotus eater who leads humanity. That must be done by the doer of things. And the doer of things wants a real home, fashions and cherishes it—makes of it something like the abode Judge Allen describes, where affection and God make portal and hearthstone resplendent with the flashing of angels' wings.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Lightning.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Will you kindly let me know what it is best to do when an electrical thunderstorm approaches on a hot day? Should I keep the windows open or shut them?—G. M. Messina, Sheepshead Bay."

It is best to close the windows and to keep away from one that may be left open. There are records of those rare phenomena, "lightning balls," drifting into a house through an open window—and also drifting out again. Lightning bolts, too, sometimes strike through an open door or window. The walls of a house and closed doors and windows furnish shelter against lightning, but just how effective the protection is depends upon circumstances. Official government reports indicate that buildings properly fitted with lightning rods are less likely to be struck than those not thus furnished.

It is foolhardy to take chances with lightning. But it is also foolish to worry overmuch during a thunderstorm. The chances are great that no harm, especially to human life, will result from the passage of the severest thunderstorm, provided that people keep indoors, or if outdoors avoid the neighborhood of tall trees, ponds, and water courses, and other objects and places likely to "attract lightning." Wire fences become dangerous during thunderstorms, as is proved by statistics of the high relative mortality among cattle crowding near such fences when assailed by a storm. Barns containing moist hay are more likely to be struck than dwelling houses.

Lightning is an electric discharge which follows the line of least resistance, and metals afford it an attractive path, so the electric force, or tension, assumulates at the pointed end of a metal conductor, producing a strain there which, if it becomes great enough, will end in a break through the resisting medium.

The function of a lightning rod is to offer to the atmospheric electricity a ready, open path by which an accumulation of tension may be harmlessly distributed before it becomes great enough to cause a break.

The majority of lightning discharges occur between the clouds and the storm. The tension on a cloud becomes so great that it may reach millions of volts, and the resulting discharge, too gigantic to be called any longer a spark, may, in extreme cases, pierce through miles of atmosphere, like the thrust of a blinding-bright sword. It is, no doubt, fortunate for us that the number of discharges between earth and clouds is not so great as that occurring between the clouds themselves. But this is only one of many fortunate circumstances with which we seem to be favored on our planet and which ought to make us less timorous over the relatively few violent phenomena with which nature assails those who pay no attention to her warnings. If we are a little careful in keeping out of notoriously dangerous situations, such as those above mentioned, we may enjoy with perfect equanimity the magnificent spectacle of battling cloud fleets which a major thunderstorm affords.

Yet the "voice of the thunder" is so nerve-shattering and the glare of the lightning stroke so brain-piercing and so frightful with its quivering speed that many persons seem unable by any effort to control their nerves during a thunderstorm. The best thing for them is to shut out the sight and, as much as possible, the sound of the battle of unchained force in the air. Lie down on a bed in an inner chamber and wait for the fracas to cease. There is very little chance that Jove with his far-darting bolts will do you any harm.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York, May 16—First impressions of Manhattan: Getting lost in the Pennsylvania station . . . The policeman who said: "This is Tholty-Thoid street" . . . The thrill of a bus-top ride up Fifth avenue . . . The first sight of a hansom cab . . . The public library lions.

That hottest 4th of July in fifty years . . . The stuffy windowless boarding-house room on west Fifty-Seventh street . . . The Polish household drudge who spoke no English . . . The clerk at the newsstand in the Arcade somewhere near Columbus circle who talked to me as though I had always lived in New York.

Ray Long's office in the Marbridge building . . . Ethel M. Kelley's kindness to a newcomer . . . Ben Hampton looking at me and thundering: "We want only men on this magazine with ideas" . . . Playing bottle pool with Harris Merton Lyon in John McGraw's billiard hall on Thirty-Fourth street.

Irvin Cobb in the first flush of fame strolling through Peacock alley wearing a fuzzy green hat . . . The apartment on west 144th street where H. T. Webster, R. M. Brinkerhoff, Ray Rohn and I resided . . . And the black girl, Polly, who served us . . . The day Lillian Russell called and smoked a tiny cigar . . .

The movie theater named for John Bunny, where we spent Saturday nights . . . The fear of the subway which has never been overcome . . . The loss of a job and the long quest for another . . . The eight weeks spent as a commission advertising solicitor without earning a penny . . . My dog, Junior . . . Lunch at the Lambs with Victor Herbert.

Days on the Evening Mail . . . And the encouragement of Burns Mantle . . . The friendliness of Grantland Rice . . . And the offwit, Rube Goldberg . . . The interview with Chauncey Depew printed on the first page . . . The codfish cakes and grape juice at Dewey's . . . Ham and—Dolan's . . . The song, "Pearie" . . .

Herb Roth's apartment in Gramercy park . . . And his janitor, William, with the Weberfield dialect . . . H. L. Doherty's old home at Bridge and Broad . . . The rented morning suit for Frank Reilly's wedding . . . Madam Laloy's red ink palace back of the Metropolitan . . . And the quarter in the slot electrical piano.

More couples apply daily at the Little Church Around the Corner to be married than any other place in Greater New York. It is the metropolitan Gretna Green and the sidewalk in front is always strewn with rice and the gutters dotted with old shoes. While there are many marriages there, there are many disappointed couples turned away. Every prospective bride and groom is questioned carefully by the good Dr. Ray. More than a marriage license is required. He must be convinced the couples are alive to the sacred reponsibilities and not responding to an impulse or they must go elsewhere.

Roger Wolf Kahn continues his jazz orchestra activities. At the writing he is taking a flyer into vaudeville. Those who thought his quixotic venture was the passing whim of a millionaire's son have found that not the case. In the beginning he is said to have borrowed an amount from his father to launch his musical career. This he paid back in a thoroughly business like way and he now has a comfortable bank balance acquired solely through his own efforts.

Young Kahn's gaudy night club was assumed to be a mere play-pretty for him to toy with. His father's social promidence pressaged a brilliant patronage. But it didn't click and the youth immediately put up the shutters rather than suffer further losses.

A Broadwayite with one of those hang-overs seldom seen, save in the Museum of Natural History under glass, walked into a cafe the other afternoon around 4 o'clock for breakfast. As he waited with his throbbing head supported in his hands, a waiter dropped a tray of dishes with a resounding clatter. The dejected patron motioned for the proprietor and inquired feebly: "Would it be possible to have the waiter do that again? I want to feel his murder was justifiable."—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Snydicate, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Those who think the race is going backward ought to be interested in this news. In 1918 there were only 1848 students in various schools preparing to teach physical education. In 1927 there were about 12,000 preparing to be such teachers. In 1914 there were only twenty-three institutions training teachers of physical education and in 1927 there were more than 1,100.

That does not look like deterioration of the race.

If you are worrying about your job, or the people with whom you are associated in the office or shop, there is one of two things for you to do if you are going to keep your physical and mental health. You must either quit worrying or quit your job. If you can't beat the worrying game there are always other jobs. There is far more contentment in a little job without worry than in a big job that keeps you fretting.

The attitude of man in his games is the best test of the distance he has travelled from barbarism. Some time ago an Iowa woman sued her husband for divorce. In the testimony she said he imposed "unheard of cruelties" on her on the golf course. He would kick her ball off the course every time she made a good approach, she said, and especially would he do this when she reached the green in fewer strokes than he did.

Now, of course, it ought to be said that she had been a very wise woman she would have taken care not to reach the green in fewer strokes than her husband. That would had judgment and indicated a poor understanding of male psychology. Few men are bosses, but smart women let them think so.

But to go back to the principal subject of this paragraph, the man in this case, just as every man who does not play a game cleanly and fairly and cheerfully, indicates that he is not yet out of the barbarous stage.

It takes a great deal of the best brand of civilization to make a man into a good loser.

Growth in number and efficiency of public libraries in America is one of the happy signs of the times. And yet there are probably 50,000,000 persons in this country not reached by public libraries. There is opportunity for immense improvement in this field. Few of us think often enough of the great wisdom of the rich Scotchman, Andrew Carnegie, who put good books within the reach of hundreds of thousands in this country.

TURNER PREDICTING NEW MARSHALL BILL

Attorney General Says It Will Be Under "Wet-or-Dry" Guise

Cincinnati, May 16—Attorney General Edward C. Turner, a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, today was on records as a prophet.

"Under a cry of 'wet-or-dry,' you are going to be confronted at the next session of the Ohio Legislature with the Marshall bill under another name," Turner predicted during an address before the Republican Club of Hamilton County here last night.

"Every intelligent person in Ohio," said Turner, "ought to realize that, so long as the Eighteenth Amendment remains in the Federal Constitution and the Volstead Law remains on the statute books, 'wet-or-dry' can not become a state issue. The only way any change can be effected is through Congress.

"On account of the distribution of the legislative representation in Ohio, we may anticipate the probability of the Anti Saloon League again capturing the majority of the legislature," continued Turner. "Unless you place in the governor's chair a man with backbone enough to veto such legislation, it will then be necessary for the state to have another referendum and the odium of another attempt by the Ohio Legislature to circumvent a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States upholding the Federal Constitution.

"In the past you have heard the 'shush shush' on any open opposition to the Anti-Saloon League from that brand of politician who is a politician in order that he may succeed as a lobbyist. In its entire history, the Anti-Saloon League failed to help elect a single Republican governor," Turner asserted.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

Have a Heart!

THE care of the heart is one of the most vital and important things in life.

• • •

When your heart hardens or "goes dead," either emotionally or physically, you are ready for the undertaker.

• • •

Keeping the heart tender and alive and responsive is the primary secret of keeping young. It is the whole foundation of youth-extension; and what we are all really seeking is not so much life-extension as "youth-extension."

• • •

When your heart can no longer beat high with hope, with love, with excitement, with enthusiasm, or just with the joy of living, you might as well pick out your tombstone, plant the ivy and the lilies and settle down to gray old age. For you are beginning to die "at the top."

• • •

A man is not old when his hair turns gray and he gets wrinkles in his cheeks, but when his hopes and enthusiasms turn gray and he gets wrinkles on the heart.

• • •

In these days when it is considered smart to be hardboiled and skeptical and cynical hearts are very much out of date. They are supposed to be found only in morons and novels and on paper valentines.

• • •

We talk a lot about "self-expression," but any expression of sentiment or emotion or spontaneous enthusiasm is regarded as naive and unsophisticated. We are deliberately choking back the fountain of youth in the unholy fear of making fools of ourselves.

• • •

Next to chewing gum there is nothing that sticks to you quite so persistently as a reputation for having made a fool of yourself. But not half so many of a man's follies are due to a soft heart as are due to a soft head.

• • •

When a woman in her forties allows a boy in his twenties to make a fool and a spectacle of her she fancies that it is because she's so soft hearted and full of sentiment.

• • •

But it is not! It is because she's so soft HEADED and full of vanity.

• • •

When a middle-aged man who ought to have reached years of discretion allows a little gold digger to make him or drag him into a breach-of-promise suit he imagines that it is because he has such a big, trusting heart.

• • •

But it's not. It's because he has such a big overgrown EGO and such a tiny half portion of common sense.

• • •

If you can keep your head hard and cool and your heart soft and warm you will get about everything out of this life that is worth having, from love to eternal youth.

• • •

Whether the heart is an organ, a muscle, or an emotional machine, keeping it healthy, young, tender and glowing is the chief business of life! Have a heart!

"[illegible] reforming, by any chance, [illegible]Dale?"

"[illegible]ard you knew I was [illegible] fooling you for a split se[illegible]d."

"[illegible]ged for the compliment [illegible]he surprised if you're more [illegible]e right. The Hercules people [illegible] section of Uncle Charley [illegible] and they want Bob [illegible] Valley just below it to [illegible] from debris when they wash [illegible]. You offered Uncle [illegible] $70,000 for the property [illegible] was worth much more."

[illegible]grinned sheepishly. "Dealing [illegible] Uncle Charley, who was on [illegible]gs and couldn't use too [illegible] show was a great deal differ[illegible]ke Long will you as the rep[illegible] of Monica Dale's interests [illegible] I have bought that proper[illegible] Charley direct. I would [illegible] $ 70000 for myself on the [illegible]

"[illegible]ercy now," Garland told [illegible]

I [illegible] the same sad things I [illegible]d to Henry Jethroe on my re[illegible] to San Francisco. Mr. Gar[illegible] I told the chief he'd have [illegible] to deal with now and that when he was ready to close with you, representing the Canfield estate of Miss Dale, he would have to make a noise like a million dollars."

Tony Garland's inquisitive eyebrow went up. "And did the mighty Jethroe lend an attentive and sympathetic ear to that suggestion, Thurlow?"

"Oh, yes. Of course the new deal upsets all his cherished plans to buy the property from me, after I had bought it from Uncle Charley, and sell it to the Hercules Company at a profit of half a million dollars. A little matter of gouging his fellow stockholders is a little matter to Jethroe. However, when he discovers he cannot deal personally he will buy the property for the company.

"I tried to get him to agree to have the company enter into an agreement of purchase with the estate now, but he shied off. I thought he would. He wants to prowl around the proposition; if he can't go directly through it he'll try to find a way over it, under it, or around it. Failing that he'll run up the white flag."

"What leverage did you employ to plant the idea in his mind?"

"That will—and Miss Dale's ownership of Honey Valley."

"Man," Garland reminded Thurlow, "don't you know I dare not file that will for probate? It isn't a will, I tell you. Uncle Charley died before he could sign it."

"Well, I signed it for him, didn't I? His intention was all right, wasn't it, and didn't he, in the presence of you, Miss Dale and two reputable witnesses, acknowledge it as his last will and testament and ask his friends then and there present to witness it? Suppose he didn't sign it.

"The will was all written out ready to be signed, and Uncle Charley had given it his approval, hadn't he? Won't you take a chance and file the will I signed, provided the witnesses will sign it, too? I'd do that much—for her," he added simply.

"I'd do it, too, if it was worth while. But it isn't. One of the witnesses is an escaped convict, Bob Mason, and I fear the judge would look upon him askance. The other witness is Sheriff Bentley, and Bentley has a certain reverence for his oath of office. The law is his mistress. Although," Garland added, "I'm half inclined to believe the man would forget the law in the interests of abstract justice.

"If I should take a chance and file this alleged will, Jethroe would induce the public administrator to contest it on the ground that the estate is very valuable that it was known to Monica Dale that it is very valuable, that she exercised undue influence on the old man, and that, moreover Uncle Charley was generally believed to be of unsound mind and was not competent to make a will. That action could not successfully be withstood. My only hope is to prove that Ashforth Dale owned that land at his death that he bought it from Uncle Charley and paid for it; that Uncle Charley issued to Ashforth Dale a deed which has been lost and which has never been recorded.

"If I can find that deed everything will be lovely. If I cannot find it, but can find evidence that such a deed was given, I will have a basis for a suit against the public administrator. I may not win such a suit, but at least it will hold up the probate of Uncle Charley's estate until I have exhausted every hope of finding the lost deed. I'm a great hand for banking on my luck and the future, Thurlow."

"I think you're right Garland. If Jethroe can get the Public Administrator busy he will do it, hoping—and not without vast justification—to be able to buy the land when it becomes the property of the state of California, which it will in the event that no legal heirs shall be found. He would buy the land then for its appraised value, and it would be appraised as grazing land, not mineral land. Of course, out of sheer cussedness, I'd see to it that the price was run up on him, but in the end he'd win. He can outgame me."

"Why did you urge me to induce Miss Dale to file for record that deed to Mason's ranch?"

"It constitutes a trump. Uncle Charleys' land is no good to the Hercules people unless the company can also secure Honey Valley in which to impound the debris. The cheaper the company gets Uncle Charley's land the greater price it should be forced to pay, proportionately, for Honey Valley.

"Well, that will be nice for Bob Mason, if he ever gets out of prison, and if he should not, it will be nice for Bob's son. But Monica Dale does not share in that profit."

A look of childish helplessness overspread Thurlow's plain features. He was silent for several minutes. "I still think that if you file that alleged will you can get away with it," he persisted, doggedly. "Now that Jethroe knows Miss Dale controls Honey Valley he will not be likely to antagonize her by opposing the will."

But Garland only shook his head. "It's a great temptation and we could get away with it if we didn't balk at perjury, but——"

"I wouldn't balk at hell to help that girl!" Thurlow declared. "I wish you could trust me. I'll never betray you, Garland. I give you my word of honor I am no longer in the Hercules employ nor will I ever be again while Henry Jethroe is the controlling owner."

"What are you going to do?"

"I don't know. It behooves me to seek another position quickly. It seems I cannot be of any help to you, so I think I'll be off in the morning. I'll write you my permanent address later, and in the event that Miss Dale should succeed in establishing her right to that land, I wish you would communicate with me before accepting any proposition from Jethroe or his company. I may be able to do much better by Miss Dale. I want to, very much, if possible." He gazed out a rose Taxtrum Meadows, his big, useful hands clasping and unclasping. "I want to make a call on Miss Dale," he announced, presently. "Would you mind loaning me your horse for a couple of hours?"

"Certainly you may have my horse, Thurlow," Garland answered heartily and went to catch the horse and saddle him.

"Now, I wonder what that strange chap is up to," he soliloquized as John Thurlow mounted and struck out across the meadows toward the Bogus trail. "Well, I suppose I may as well unmask the enemy's batteries. I'm going to file Uncle Charley's contemplative will and see what developes in the Jethroe camp."

Two hours later, Monica Dale, hearing the sound of hoofs in her front yard, came to her cabin door and looked out. From the back of Tony Garland's horse a stranger lifted his hat to her with great respect.

"Perhaps you do not readily recall me, Miss Dale," he said. "I'm John Thurlow, until recently the superintendent of the Hercules Hydraulic Mining Company at Dogwood Flats."

Monica smiled a welcome. "Oh yes, I remember you well. Tony Garland was telling me about you recently. Have you called to see me with reference to that mining land? Because if you have, Mr. Thurlow," she added abruptly, "I'll have to refer you to Mr. Garland."

"Mine is not a business call," he replied, and, dismounting, walked up to the door. "My peace of mind has been more or less disturbed since I first saw you Miss Dale. Dan Cupid shot a keyhole in my heart that day. Of course this is not news of any particular interest to you, but my peace of mind is of considerable interest to me. I want to ask you a question on a subject which is none of my business, and my only excuse for asking it is because I'll feel better when it is answered, no matter how you answer it. May I ask the question? I do not mean to be impertinent."

"I am certain of that, Mr. Thurlow. Ask your question."

"Are you in love with Ranger Anthony Garland?"

Monica flushed. "Yes I am, Mr. Thurlow."

He grinned a twisted grin. "Well that lets me out. May I not congratulate you on your tact in placing your affections in such a responsible, reliable, decent, manly quarter? I wish you all the happiness in the world that robs none other, Miss Dale. Thank you."

He lifted his hat, climbed on Garland's horse and without further ado, rode away. He had reached the little gate before the girl could recover her wits. Then she called to him and he looked back. "Thank you, Mr. Thurlow," she said. "I think you're mighty nice. If anything should ever happen to Tony, won't you come back?" And she threw him a kiss.

"God bless you and keep you," he called, and threw the kiss back to her.

Monica sighed. "Men are such strange creatures," she decided, and returned to her ironing.

As for John Thurlow, hesitation and doubt were no longer his portion. He had come straight to headquarters for certain information necessary to his peace of mind and he had received the information. Even as he disappeared around the shoulder of Bogus he knew that he would leave Siskiyou in the morning. He was not crushed. He had merely dreamed a little wistful daydream, and he had not awakened still in the thrall of it. Merely a little heavy-hearted, shot with the poignant ache of disappointment, that was all. He too was a man not given to feeling sorry for himself.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Wednesday. It is warm weather yet, and dry, and my mother's geranium is almost as good as ever, but I don't believe my mother is. She sets down a cushion in her chair at the table. She grabbed Annabelle Lee up and kissed her this morning and said "You little darling, you are worth all the geraniums in the world!" My grandfather acted like if she hadn't let us take the pasture treatment to hydrophobia, and me mother told him that the joke wasn't mad it was her that was mad, and they all laughed. I was glad I hadn't left the rake there.

After breakfast me and Jubilee and the bunch went down to the dump to see if there were any fishes around the edge and there were quite a lot of sunfishes and a few bullheads. Young bullheads are about as long as a fella's little finger and are black and have got whiskers. Feeble asted the Lost Bag of Tripe if he would do something for her, and he would like to be sweet on her and he told her he would do anything for her, and she told him to go and jump in the pond. Then we all gave the Lost Bag of Tripe the laugh and he said all right, and began to take off his clothes. Younies and Maggie the girl that got fascinated on her leg started to go to school, and so did the rest of us but Feeble stated, so the Lost Bag of Tripe put his coat back on and showed he was just a bluffer, like Feeble knowed he was. He grinned at Feeble and she grinned at him, and she said to him "Open your mouth and shut your eyes, silly," and he done it and stood there looking like he didn't have any sense. Feeble had caught a little bullhead somehow, and she popped it into the Lost Bag of Tripe's face and he shut his face and opened his eyes, and then he bit it to see what it was, and he dropped it out on his hand to look at it, and he had completely ruined it. He spit and gulped and wiped his tongue on his sleeve all the way to school, and we laughed at him. Frankie told him she thought they liked them or else wouldn't [illegible] it. He told the[illegible] he [illegible] had to go home, and [illegible] he might be sick but [illegible] go home, as he [illegible] so many [illegible] of him [illegible] the [illegible]
